Starting Your Conversation

- What positive characteristics does our community embody? How can we leverage these to better our collective future?
- What are the needs of our community? What concrete steps do we need to take in the next year to move toward a safer neighborhood, healthier community, more informed public, etc.?
- How can we work together to improve conditions outside of our own?
- How can we work together to improve the chances of more people doing well? How do you define “doing well”?
- Let’s choose an issue affecting our community and talk more specifically about how we would address it – with unlimited resources and then, as a challenge, if we only had $1,000.
- Now let’s take the next step. Residents from all walks of life across Lake County will be gathering today at meal-time conversations just like ours. How can we use these conversations to bring colleagues, friends and neighbors together to lead change across the county and create a more unified region? What should we do next?
